addressing current issues of which any engineer or computer scientist should be aware this monograph is a response to the need to adopt a new computational paradigm as the methodological basis for designing pervasive embedded systems with sensor capabilities the requirements of this paradigm are to control complexity to limit cost and energy consumption and to provide adaptation and cognition abilities allowing the embedded system to interact proactively with the real world the quest for such intelligence requires the formalization of a new generation of intelligent systems able to exploit advances in digital architectures and in sensing technologies the book sheds light on the theory behind intelligence for embedded systems with specific focus on robustness the robustness of a computational flow and its evaluation intelligence how to mimic the adaptation and cognition abilities of the human brain the capacity to learn in non stationary and evolving environments by detecting changes and reacting accordingly and a new paradigm that by accepting results that are correct in probability allows the complexity of the embedded what is more paradoxically democratic than a people exercising their vote against the harbingers of the rule of law and democracy what happens when the will of the people and the rule of law are at odds some commentators note that the presence of illiberal political movements in the public arena of many western countries demonstrates that their democracy is so inclusive and alive that it comprehends and countenances even undemocratic forces and political agendas but what if on the contrary these were the signs of the deconsolidation of democracy instead of its good health what if democratically elected regimes were to ignore constitutional principles representing the rule of law and the limits of their power with contributions from judges and scholars from different backgrounds and nationalities this book explores the framework in which this tension currently takes place in several western countries by focusing on four key themes the rule of law presenting a historical and theoretical reconstruction of the evolution of the rule of law the people dealing with a set of problems around the notion of people and the forces claiming to represent their voice democracy and its enemies tackling a variety of phenomena impacting on the traditional democratic balance of powers and institutional order elected and non elected focusing on the juxtaposition between judges and more generally non representative bodies and the people s representation we live in an age in which one can easily think that our generation has invented and discovered almost everything but the truth is quite the opposite progress cannot be considered as sudden unexpected spurts of individual brains such a genius the inventor of everything has never existed in the history of humanity what did exist was a limitless procession of experiments made by men who did not waver when faced with defeat but were inspired by the rare successes that have led to our modern comfortable reality and that continue to do so with the same enthusiasm the study of the history of engineering is valuable for many reasons not the least of which is the fact that it can help us to understand the genius of the scientists engineers and craftsmen who existed centuries and millenniums before us who solved problems using the devices of their era making machinery and equipment whose concept is of such a surprising modernity that we must rethink our image of the past from the shores of europe to the mexican us border mass migration is one of the most pressing issues we face today yet at the same time calls to defend national sovereignty are becoming ever more vitriolic with those fleeing war persecution and famine vilified as a threat to our security as well as our social and economic order in this book written amidst the dark resurgence of appeals to defend blood and soil donatella di cesare challenges the idea of the exclusionary state arguing that migration is a fundamental human right she develops an original philosophy of migration that places the migrants themselves rather than states and their borders at the centre through an analysis of three historic cities athens rome and jerusalem di cesare shows how we should conceive of migrants not as an other but rather as resident foreigners this means recognising that citizenship cannot be based on any supposed connection to the land or an exclusive claim to ownership that would deny the rights of those who arrive as migrants instead citizenship must be disconnected from the possession of territory altogether and founded on the principle of cohabitation and on the ultimate reality that we are all temporary guests and tenants of the earth di cesare s argument for a new ethics of hospitality will be of great interest to all those concerned with the challenges posed by migration and with the increasingly hostile attitudes towards migrants as well as students and scholars of philosophy and political theory
