middle school and early high school dropouts have long troubled educators however research on this sad phenomenon has been far less than definitive as to the causes in this research based book roderick examines two critical factors impacting graduation or dropping out they are school transition to middle school and from there to high school and secondly grade retention the subjects of the study were students from an urban massachusetts public school system the author contends the notion that middle and high school dropouts can be predicted based on their grades and attendance in 4th grade she also provides the strongest evidence to date that the experience of being retained in grade increases a student s chances of dropping out this book gives us a new conception of the nature of school dropout in schools with high dropout rates

a revealing and provocative look at the current state of global science we take the advance of science as given but how does science really work is it truly as healthy as we tend to think how does the system itself shape what scientists do the secret life of science takes a clear eyed and provocative look at the current state of global science shedding light on a cutthroat and tightly tensioned enterprise that even scientists themselves often don t fully understand the secret life of science is a dispatch from the front lines of modern science it paints a startling picture of a complex scientific ecosystem that has become the most competitive free market environment on the planet it reveals how big this ecosystem really is what motivates its participants and who reaps the rewards are there too few scientists in the world or too many are some fields expanding at the expense of others what science is shared or published and who determines what the public gets to hear about what is the future of science answering these and other questions this controversial book explains why globalization is not necessarily good for science nor is the continued growth in the number of scientists it portrays a scientific community engaged in a race for limited resources that determines whether careers are lost or won whose research visions become the mainstream and whose vested interests end up in control the secret life of science explains why this hypercompetitive environment is stifling the diversity of research and the resiliency of science itself and why new ideas are needed to ensure that the scientific enterprise remains healthy and vibrant
