a proposal that extends the enactive approach developed in cognitive science and philosophy of mind to issues in affective science in the feeling body giovanna colombetti takes ideas from the enactive approach developed over the last twenty years in cognitive science and philosophy of mind and applies them for the first time to affective science the study of emotions moods and feelings she argues that enactivism entails a view of cognition as not just embodied but also intrinsically affective and she elaborates on the implications of this claim for the study of emotion in psychology and neuroscience in the course of her discussion colombetti focuses on long debated issues in affective science including the notion of basic emotions the nature of appraisal and its relationship to bodily arousal the place of bodily feelings in emotion experience the neurophysiological study of emotion experience and the bodily nature of our encounters with others drawing on enactivist tools such as dynamical systems theory the notion of the lived body neurophenomenology and phenomenological accounts of empathy colombetti advances a novel approach to these traditional issues that does justice to their complexity doing so she also expands the enactive approach into a further domain of inquiry one that has more generally been neglected by the embodied embedded approach in the philosophy of cognitive science corey w dyck presents a new account of kant s criticism of the rational investigation of the soul in his monumental critique of pure reason in light of its eighteenth century german context when characterizing the rational psychology that is kant s target in the paralogisms of pure reason chapter of the critique commentators typically only refer to an approach to and an account of the soul found principally in the thought of descartes and leibniz but dyck argues that to do so is to overlook the distinctive rational psychology developed by christian wolff which emphasized the empirical foundation of any rational cognition of the soul and which was widely influential among eighteenth century german philosophers including kant in this book dyck reveals how the received conception of the aim and results of kant s paralogisms must be revised in light of a proper understanding of the rational psychology that is the most proximate target of kant s attack in particular he contends that kant s criticism hinges upon exposing the illusory basis of the rational psychologist s claims inasmuch as he falls prey to the appearance of the soul as being given in inner experience moreover dyck demonstrates that significant light can be shed on kant s discussion of the soul s substantiality simplicity personality and existence by considering the paralogisms in this historical context

In Other Words 2002

in this book professor jeanine grenberg defends the idea that kant s virtue theory is best understood as a system of eudaemonism indeed as a distinctive form of eudaemonism that makes it preferable to other forms of it a system of what she calls deontological eudaemonism in deontological eudaemonism one achieves happiness both rationally conceived as non felt pleasure in the virtually unimpeded harmonious activity of one s will and choice and empirically conceived as pleasurable fulfilment of one s desires only via authentic commitment to and fulfilment of what is demanded of all rational beings making persons as such one s end in all things to tell this story of deontological eudaemonism grenberg first defends the notion that kant s deontological approach to ethics is simultaneously and indeed foundationally and most basically teleological she then shows that the realization of an aptitude for the virtuous fulfilment of one s obligatory ends provides the solid basis for simultaneous realization of happiness both rationally and empirically conceived along the way she argues both that kant s notion of happiness rationally conceived is essentially identical to aristotle s conception of happiness as unimpeded activity and that his notion of happiness empirically conceived is best realized via an unwavering commitment to the fulfilment of one s obligatory ends someone contrary to the most basic rules of logic think that two contradictory statements are both true at the same time such questions may seem outlandish but they serve to highlight a fundamental philosophical question is our logical form of thought merely one among many or must it be the form of thought as such from descartes and kant to frege and wittgenstein philosophers have wrestled with variants of this question and with a range of competing answers a seminal 1991 paper james conant s the search for logically alien thought placed that question at the forefront of contemporary philosophical inquiry the logical alien edited by sofia miguens gathers conant s original article with reflections on it by eight distinguished philosophers jocelyn benoist matthew boyle martin gustafsson arata hamawaki adrian moore barry stroud peter sullivan and charles travis conant follows with a wide ranging response that places the philosophical discussion in historical context critiques his original paper addresses the exegetical and systematic issues raised by others and presents an alternative account the logical alien challenges contemporary conceptions of how logical and philosophical form must each relate to their content this monumental volume offers the possibility of a new direction in philosophy a novel treatment of the capacity for shared attention joint action and perceptual common knowledge in the shared world axel seemann offers a new treatment of the capacity to perceive act on and know about the world together with others seemann argues that creatures capable of joint attention stand in a unique perceptual and epistemic relation to their surroundings they operate in an environment that they through their communication with their fellow perceivers help constitute seemann shows that this relation can be marshaled to address a range of questions about the social aspect of the mind and its perceptual and cognitive capacities seemann begins with a conceptual question about a complex kind of sociocognitive phenomenon perceptual common knowledge and develops an empirically informed account of the spatial structure of the environment in and about which such knowledge is possible in the course of his argument he addresses such topics as demonstrative reference in communication common knowledge about jointly perceived objects and spatial awareness in joint perception and action

Political Thinkers 2017

descartes made a sharp distinction between matter and mind but he also thought that the two interact with one another is such interaction possible however without either a materialist reduction of mind to matter or an idealist phenomenalist reduction of matter to mind these questions overshadow the western tradition in metaphysics from the time of descartes to present times the book makes an effort to stay clear of reductivist views of the two cartesian substances it defends a dualistic psycho physical parallel theory which reconciles freedom of action with determinism in nature basic problems in perception theory are also discussed with special emphasis on hearing and sound because of the intrinsic interest of the subject and the author s non technical presentation of it the book should appeal to all readers with a serious interest in philosophy and psychology architecture's role is becoming increasingly limited to serving the all pervasive system of globalised capitalism and becoming a constituent complicit part of its mechanism the resistant object of architecture addresses this problem and does so in a way that represents a marked departure from predominant responses which as the book shows do not address the core issue the book addresses this problem by focusing on the question what is architecture and responds to this question by developing the immanent structural logic of architecture that enables it to work not only as an instrumental thinking practice but as a practice of creative thinking this means that it alone determines its issues problems and priorities and precisely because of that it has the capacity and cogency to destabilise indeed pierce holes in the system in which it operates the resistant object of architecture draws on various theoretical sources from the psychoanalysis of Jacques Lacan and the philosophy of Alain Badiou to contemporary architectural theory in contrast to the predominant view of today it demonstrates that architecture has an affirmative transformative capacity this book is an ideal read for those interested in architectural theory and history analysis of contemporary architecture and philosophy of architecture rationale software engineering aims to develop software by using approaches which enable large and complex program suites to be developed in a systematic way however it is well known that it is difficult to obtain the level of assurance of correctness required for safety critical software using old fashioned programming techniques the level of safety required becomes particularly high in software which is to function without a break for long periods of time since the software cannot be restarted and errors can accumulate consequently programming for mission critical systems for example needs to address the requirements of correctness with particular care in the search for techniques for making software cheaper and more reliable two important but largely independent influences have been visible in recent years these are object technology formal methods first it has become evident that objects are and will remain an important concept in software experimental languages of the 1970s introduced various concepts of package cluster module etc giving concrete expression to the importance of modularity and encapsulation the construction of software components hiding their state representations and algorithmic mechanisms from users exporting only those features mainly the procedure calling mechanisms which were needed in order to use the objects this gives the software components a level of abstraction separating the view of what a module does for the system from the details of how it does them cinema is a sensuous object but in our presence it becomes also a sensing sensual sense making subject thus argues Vivian Sobchack as she challenges basic assumptions of current film theory that reduce film to an object of vision and the spectator to a victim of a deterministic cinematic apparatus maintaining that these premises ignore the material and cultural historical situations of both the spectator and the film the author makes the radical proposal that the cinematic experience depends on two viewers viewing the spectator and the film each existing as both subject and object of vision drawing on existential and semiotic phenomenology and particularly on the work of Merleau-Ponty Sobchack shows how the film experience provides empirical insight into the reversible dialectical and signifying nature of that embodied vision we each live daily as both mine and another's in this attempt to account for cinematic intelligibility and signification the author explores the possibility of human choice and expressive freedom within the bounds of history and culture

learn to find the happiness that is natural to you and enjoy better relationships better health more success and a longer life the peculiar thing about us humans is we spend a lot of time working to find people and things that will make us happy in fact we seem to spend the majority of our time doing this however there is no guarantee that any of this effort will work there are lots of people who have hordes of people around them and who have lots of things but have been unable to make themselves happy the truth is happiness can be had with little effort have you ever been happy for no reason at all of course you have without anything changing in life happiness just appears we see it in young children all the time in fact we expect to see it in children if you happen to ask a smiling child why he or she is so happy at best the answer may be because for an adult this may be an unsatisfying answer but for the child it is the truth happiness exists just because as we age we seem to lose touch with happiness for no reason at all we see a world where everyone is striving for stuff striving for popularity striving striving the natural fount of happiness we once enjoyed disappears as we join them however that happiness is not gone all that happened is we lost our connection to it this book is about recovering that connection we all grow up believing that if we work hard and if we are good people we will enjoy good relationships with others good health success and a long life obviously this is not true there are a lot of rich old people who are not happy what we have what we do and the other circumstances of our lives do not provide authentic happiness instead happiness comes from inside of us and all by itself enables us to have secure relationships good health more success and longer lives so what is the secret of being happy being happy is a little like flipping a switch when it s on you are happy and when it s off you are not it s so easy how else can you explain being happy for no reason what you need to do is learn to turn it on and keep it turned on this book discusses seven practices that help you do that there is a lot of wisdom available about how to be happy most of it is thousands of years old but some is quite new the seven practices we will look at incorporate this wisdom to help you learn how to turn on happiness in your life this kind of happiness does not require changing anything in your life all you have to do is learn to turn it on
